

Using Your Signature Font

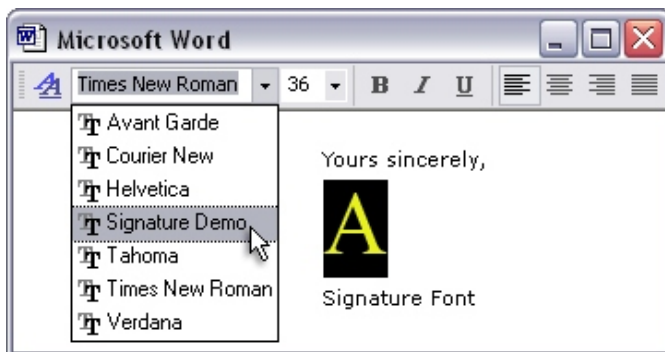

Signature fonts are standard TrueType fonts, and once installed you can use it in any application that gives you access to a font menu, including Microsoft Word.

Follow the simple steps below to see how to insert your signature into a text document. This procedure may vary slightly in different applications, if so follow the normal font selection process for that program.

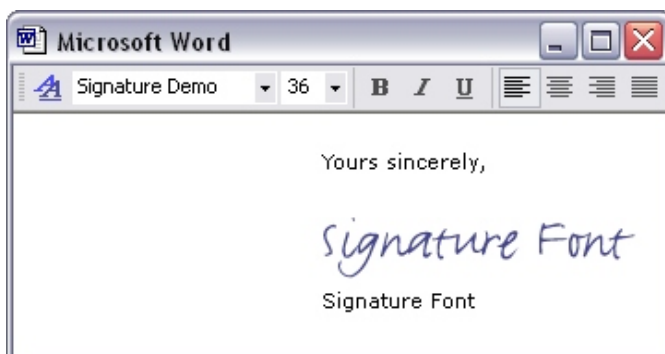

1. Place your cursor where you would like your signature to appear.
2. Type the key stroke you specified to access your signature (In the example below, this is "A", so simply type "A" in the current font).

3. Now highlight the letter which you just typed, and click on the Font drop-down menu.

4. Select your Signature Font from the menu list. Your signature will then appear on screen instantly within the text of your document.

5. Finally, to increase the size of your signature, highlight the font and select your desired point size.
